Description
Provide a short description of the event and its activities.
The two-day international symposium on antisemitism in the past and present was hosted in Berlin aimed to convey trans-European perspectives on the prevention of antisemitism, to raise awareness of the dangers of trivialising the Holocaust and to give participants the opportunity to exchange views on tendencies to instrumentalise history for populist/nationalist discourse in European countries. Historians, contemporary witnesses and experts from many EU countries had their say in the form of lectures, discussions and workshops and visitors had the opportunity to exchange their thoughts with experts through interactive formats. The feedback communicated to ASF was consistently positive. The conference was covered on social media channels and on the ASF website. The chosen programme with prominent guests from the field, the number of participants, the active participation during the event and the positive feedback afterwards show the success of the conference.
